

Inclusive Excellence Plan

UVA Human Resources

May 2022

Executive Summary

In 2019, the Office for Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion (ODEI) introduced the Inclusive Excellence framework. This work directly supports the 2030 goal of the University of Virginia (UVA) becoming a great and good institution. According to President Ryan, “the most effective way to achieve this dual goal of great and good is straightforward:

1. Recruit and retain the best people, whether students, faculty, or staff;
2. Create and sustain an atmosphere where all can thrive and do their best work; and
3. Nurture a culture that emphasizes the importance of serving not just ourselves, but others.”

The UVA Human Resources (HR) Inclusive Excellence plan that follows is intended to be “inside out,” meaning that we will first focus on applying the framework and making substantive change within the HR team before sharing and applying what we learned to benefit the institution as a whole. While we have made some organization-wide accomplishments already, the plan that follows will be the starting place for HR as a department as we build capacity to scale beyond our four walls.

HR is in a unique and critical position to not only increase diversity and inclusion within our team, but also to lead the way from an operations standpoint with this critical work. Because HR impacts every employee at UVA, it is incumbent upon HR to play a foundational and key role in systemic change at the University. The research on DEI is clear; a diverse workforce can improve innovation, attract and retain talent, increase productivity, and better customer service, according to Hult International Business School and other academic research.¹ Through HR’s IE framework and what we learn from our proposed initiatives, HR can celebrate its diversity, support other university-wide initiatives, and work toward increasing inclusion and belonging, operationalize DEI concepts, model inclusive behavior, and lead thoughtful conversations across Grounds.

Work beyond HR has already begun, including a comprehensive review of 18 HR policies to ensure the language was inclusive and the policy was equitable, and then making adjustments as appropriate. HR has built partnerships with community organizations such as the Chamber and local high schools but has also focused specifically on furthering partnerships with organizations such as the International Rescue Committee, JABA, the Virginia Department for Aging & Rehabilitative Services, Young Black Professionals, and Virginia Values Veterans to ensure that our hiring practices are inclusive and supportive of the local community. Indeed, 10 veterans have been hired at UVA through the Virginia Values Veterans partnership.

Furthermore, HR was a partner in a recent Pipelines and Pathways working group that made a far-reaching recommendation to the President, outlining strategies for reaching underserved local populations and creating more points of entry for employment at UVA. The Talent Management team undertook an extensive review of its learning and leadership development programs to ensure diversity, equity, and inclusion were part of the curriculum. And our Employee Relations team continuously reviews data regarding disciplinary actions to ensure an equitable approach is taken.

In addition, in 2021, UVA HR undertook a comprehensive review of the University's benefits summary plan descriptions to ensure that the language used was as inclusive as possible. For example:

- "Family" was redefined to include same sex spouses.
- All references to sex change, gender reassignment, or any other terms related to transgender transition were deleted and replaced with "gender affirmation treatment."
- All references to specific gender and members with particular organs or conditions were deleted and made generic.
- All references to "mothers" were deleted and made generic (e.g., "members who are pregnant" or "members who are delivering").

While our work continues in areas such as these, the focus of the proposed Inclusive Excellence initiatives in the following plan are for inside of HR itself and will require a substantial investment of time, resource allocation, and leadership role-modeling. HR must invest in core DEI initiatives to not only manage workforce risks in turnover and retention but also to enable the corresponding benefits stemming from a thoughtful DEI strategy for the future. By clearly defining our HR DEI strategy, we will ensure alignment to UVA's 2030 plan and eventually place itself at the center of enabling exceptional DEI outcomes for UVA at large. Now is the time for HR to make these initiatives a top priority within our department first, and then move into a leading role with DEI within the institution as a whole.

Inclusive Excellence Plan

Introduction

UVA HR supports both the Academic and UVA Health divisions. With 230 HR employees supporting 17,400 benefited employees, this department's footprint is small, but its influence is far-reaching. HR is the only area of UVA that impacts every employee from the beginning of their employment through their development and career progression to the end of their employment here. To deliver best in class service, HR is organized in the following communities of expertise:

- 1) Talent
 - a) Talent Recruitment
 - b) Talent Management
 - c) Employee Relations
- 2) Service
 - a) HR Business Partners
 - b) HR Solution Center
- 3) Impact and Decision Support
 - a) HR Business Operations
 - b) People Data and Technology
 - c) Total Rewards
 - d) Continuous Improvement / Project Management

Each group within HR has responsibility for the Inclusive Excellence plan and its outcomes. This draft was initiated by the HR DEI committee, which includes individuals from all communities of expertise across HR and approved by the Vice President & Chief Human Resources Officer.

During their self-assessment of HR, the committee gained consensus on initiatives that can have the biggest impact on the department and perhaps the organization. Our proposed Inclusive Excellence HR initiatives address at least one area of each of the following:

1. Assess HR processes and practices to determine gaps against DEI goals/focus
2. Develop a measurement and tracking system for processes and practices to demonstrate value of culture change within HR
3. Address the hiring practices and retention of historically underrepresented groups in HR
4. Partner with University Offices for Diversity, Equity, Inclusion and Community Partnerships to create, promote and support DEI efforts across Grounds and UVA Health System
5. ELT and SLT will lead messaging to define importance, create awareness, and transparency across HR goals

Conclusion

HR intends to use this Inclusive Excellence plan as an ever-evolving 'Learning Laboratory,' documenting what we learn, where we may stumble or fall short and where we succeed or are (pleasantly) surprised by outcomes. In so doing, we can then shift our focus to the broader University community and scale what was successful (which providing some cautionary tales for others where we may not have found success). As the organization responsible for the University's human resources, the HR team is uniquely positioned to lead by example with respect to DEI, not just for HR itself but also for all of UVA. We take this responsibility seriously while recognizing our own commitment to improve continuously, viewing any opportunity for improvement as necessary for growth and development. By putting the action plans listed above into place, HR is poised for strategic growth and to lead systemic change. We look forward to putting these plans into place for the ultimate future benefit of all at UVA.
