Cody Lloyd, Teacher Education Specialist and Adjunct Instructor, UVA School of Education and Human Development

Hi there, my name is Cody Lloyd, and I work in the School of Education and Human Development here at UVA. I specifically work within the Department of Curriculum Instruction and Special Education, within the teacher education program here at the School of Ed, and I also serve as an adjunct instructor. Why I love the School of Ed: It's a very tight knit community. Like we always say, a lot of our majors are a calling more so than a profession. So, we're around great students, great faculty, and great staff. It's a very "family" atmosphere. We all look out for one another. There's room for growth and there's always ways you can challenge yourself and grow and learn. [There is a] very open door policy, and everyone's looking out for each other. I love where I work; I love the people I work with; I love our students, and it's a very enriching and robust environment to immerse yourself in and grow both as a professional and as a person.
