Speakers: Bob Hunsberger, Imaging Supervisor , UVA Health

Question slide: How did you find your way to your current role at UVA Health?

Bob Hunsberger: Hello, my name is Robert Hunsberger. I'm the imaging supervisor at the University of Virginia Medical Center. I've been here for about 20 years and how I ended up at UVA was I met an HR recruiter at Virginia Beach student seminar, as a student technologist. And since then I've pursued additional degrees. I received my bachelor's degree and my master's degree basically by taking online courses that University of Virginia Medical Center supported financially and I was able to finance that process and that was instrumental in me moving to this position.

What do you enjoy most about your job?

Bob Hunsberger: I've worked at the University of Virginia Medical Center for 20 years and I enjoy working in a medical center that has cutting edge technology. What I most like about my job at the University of Virginia Medical Center is I get to help people. I get to help people as patients and I get to help people as technologists. My job as imaging supervisor allows me to allow people to grow and support them as they grow with their career. And imaging technologists come in from brand new students that have just graduated all the way up to technologists who have been here many years. I get to support their growth and advancement in the medical imaging field.
