University Police Department

I'm Dan Stuart with the University of Virginia Police Department. I'm a lieutenant here in charge of our COPS unit, which is our Community Oriented Policing Squad. And, I've been here for 24 years. So, I got involved with LEC tutoring last year. Uh, when D.C. Hall approached me about the idea of doing it, when he created the program here, the young lady that I dealt with last year, um she. The first question she asked me when I met her was, am I the only one that you're tutoring this year? And I said, yes. And she's like, that's cool. You know, she thought it was great that somebody was dedicating their time to her to help her learn and grow. So, I had a really good experience with that and good time with that. She did grow in her reading and her comprehension. She was doing much better towards the end and uh all the reports that we had is that everybody in that whole group that we tutored, their their reading skills greatly improved during that time period. So, that was that was great to hear. Uh this is an experience that I wouldn't trade. It was a good, great experience to have.
